Mosquitos buzz to new heights

Bad bites. Population numbers higher now than they've been in years

TUMILTY

You're not imagining it as you fight your way through the swarm; Edmonton's mosquito population is at record levels.

City officials updated the situation on Thursday and, while official numbers are not yet in, Mike Jenkins, a biological sciences technician with the city, said it's likely a record

"I suspect that it is probably around the highest peak we have seen in August in probably decades," he said.

The city collects mosquitoes in traps across the city and analyzes them once a week. Jenkins said he believes the traps

He said late July storms created ideal breeding ground and the humid weather is perfect for adult mosquitoes.

"There are always going to be some mosquitoes that either get missed by the program or move in from areas outside of our program," he said.

Unfortunately, he added, there is little the city can do now about the problem, but Jenkins is hopeful as the air becomes less humid the issue will resolve itself. "Typically, these August spurts are short-lived and, hopefully, that is the case now," he said.

Ryan Dyck, who works in the pro shop at Lewis Estates Golf Course, said they have certainly noticed the surge.

"They were swarming pretty good today," he said.

Dyck said golfers have been taking the bugs in stride.

"Not too many people are complaining," he said.

Redford's lonely planet. Former premier employed travel scout

Alison Redford travelled the globe when she was Alberta's premier and so did her travel scout, forwarding photos of hotels and suites, sussing out suitable patios and restaurants and at least once advising on public toilets.

Michelle Tetreault went to such locales as China, India, Switzerland, London and Washington in the 20 months she held the position that International Relations Minister Cal Dallas said didn't exist before Redford came to power.

The Canadian Press obtained nearly 1,600 pages of Tetreault's emails through the Freedom of Information Act. Although many portions were blanked out, the documents provide a glimpse into the mysterious job.

Tetrault travelled to most locations months before the former premier, often flying business class. She travelled to China in June 2012 before Redford's trade mission the following September. She compiled photos, including one of a "traditional Chinese restaurant." Tetreault also set out a list of China travel tips for staff: it's custom not to place a purse or briefcase on the floor, and remember, "public toilets are all crouch only."

Tetreault got the job shortly after Redford and the Progressive Conservatives won the 2012 election. A provincial directory lists her salary as $127,827 the following year.

City thinks about adding more buses

Report. Overcrowding, new neighbourhoods make additional buses a priority, but funding decision won't be made until December

STEPHANIE DUBOIS stephanie.dubois@metronews.ca

More buses to address overcrowding and to bring peakhour transit to newer neighbourhoods are on the list of priorities expected to make its way to budget deliberations later this year, said city officials.

In a report to be presented on Wednesday to the transportation committee, steps for more transit and specific overcrowded routes on which the need is the greatest will be brought forward.

Overcrowding on 14 different routes in the city needs to be addressed, according to the report, which outlines the need for extra trips and higher frequencies for many of both corridor and neighbourhood routes, which include routes 2, 4 and 19.

"If people are constantly faced with overloaded buses, that tends to turn away potential riders. If we don't provide additional capacity for them, they could be turned off," said Bill Sabey, director of customer service development.

In order to address the overload issue on some routes, it would cost taxpayers $2.82 million annually if more buses were added to the specific routes, starting September 2015

With growth demands in the city also putting strain on city transit, the report outlines the need to also address areas

Reykjavik. How street art helped bring some colour to a dreary, hopeless city

FOOTNOTES Omar Mouallem omouallem@gmail.com

This was the Reykjavik I arrived to in the height of summer — rainy, windy, chilly. A shock to my system after sunny Florence, but it never felt as dreary as it looked, thanks to the city's use of colour in its urban form.

Picnic tables on the street add splashes of pink. Road barriers are reminiscent of lollipops. Even parts of the street are streaked with bright paint.

To understand where the touch of whimsy comes from, one needs to look up at the sides of worn, aged buildings.

The country's talented street artists have turned the capital city into a walking gallery. For a city of just 120,000 (and a country of double that) it's astonishing how many murals there are, and how sophisticated the work is.

In Edmonton, we've wrestled with how to beautify drabness in our downtown buildings.

Light the Bridge grew from this and, to an extent, so did the neon museum. Just this week, a Make Something Edmonton campaign emerged to re-face downtown. These are expensive and complicated. But property owners looking to spruce up exposed concrete can look to how Reykjavik bureaucrats and businesses embraced street art.

It wasn't always this way. Yes, houses in Reykjavik have for decades had a St. John's feel, but that was the extent of the colour. In the late 2000s, the city had a zero-tolerance policy for street art.

"A lot of art got painted over in this grey-green paint," recalls Tanya Pollock, an American-Icelandic street artist. Huge fines were handed out to vandals, regardless of how welcomed their art was. "With that policy, (the city) started a street war and illegal painting increased like a thousand per cent."

Debt and bankruptcy loomed in the background. The financial crash didn't just break bank accounts, but spirits. It was visible in the broken glass and trash in the streets. Street artists felt like they were one of the few adding beauty to their hopeless city. Locals agreed.

Residences and independent businesses started putting "Paint Something Nice" stickers on their walls, inviting artists, spurring creative freedom. After seeing street art bloom in an urban garden, the city began relationships with street artists and stores started commissioning work. "It's responsible for showing the city and Iceland how much we benefit from colour, and spreading it," says Pollock.

Today, it's hard to tell what's co-ordinated and what's not. What's advertising, what's art. My favourite piece was on the side of a haberdashery: a sequence of illustrations demonstrating how to tie a tie.

Whether it's promotional or not is beside the point. "It makes the city feel more vibrant, said Pollock. "And it shows our culture."

Future of Rexall Place at top of to-do list for new Northlands boss

'Tricky.' Newly hired CEO says 'has to come up with a plan that will work for everybody,' says' Coun. Oshry

RYAN TUMILTY ryan.tumilty@metronews.ca

Northlands has a new CEO to oversee horse racing, K-Days and the Expo Centre, but he said Thursday that top on his to-do list is figuring out the future of Rexall Place.

The society's board announced Thursday they had appointed Tim Reid, the former head of the Regional Recreation Corporation of Wood Buffalo, as new president and CEO.

Reid said his first priority is hearing from his new staff, but right below that is figuring out a future for Rexall, which he said has to be decided in the next six months.

"We're trying to put together the data as we speak, so we know exactly what happens when the Oilers and their properties move to another arena," he said.

While in Fort McMurray, Reid helped open several facilities, including ones built by the architects behind the new downtown arena and he expects a venue that will compete aggressively with Rexall.

"They're as good as it gets and I have no doubt that facility is something will define the City of Edmonton," he said. "It will be a first-class, world-class facility."

Coun. Michael Oshry, who sits on the Northlands board, agreed that Rexall Place has to get resolved.

"The new CEO and the board has to come up with a plan that will work for everybody, but it's a tricky one," he said

Ins and outs of guarding a marijuana grow-op

"It's Mission Impossible, pretty much," remarked the founder and president of Sundial Growers on the tail end of a 90-minute tour provided to Metro of his 30,000-square-foot covered greenhouse, located just northwest of Airdrie.

It's on this land where he hopes to "set the stage" for what some believe will be a lucrative commercial marijuana market. Health Canada has moved away from personal, home-based grow-operations, but believes the need for medicinal marijuana will only bloom like a well-cared-for pot plant in the years to come.

The federal agency has approved 13 sites to date, including Swiatek's, to grow pot plants commercially.

But Sundial has faced stiff pushback from neighbours and Rocky View county officials. Safety is a primary concern.

"What's to stop people from all of the sudden showing up and breaking into my property because they think I'm the grower?" questioned Naomi Kerr, who can see Swiatek's greenhouse from the horse arena on her adjacent property.

"He has no perimeter fencing ... the problem is, it's going to attract a segment of society, I think, that I'm really not thrilled about."

Sundial's steadfast entrepreneur said his customers won't be venturing to his property, as his product will be entirely delivered by mail or courier.

He's also dumped hundreds of thousands into a "state-ofthe-art" security system, which includes seismic sensors, safe rooms, an underground vault, electronic door locks, metal access doors and dozens of cameras that hang over marijuana handlers as if they were gamblers seated at casino blackjack

Swiatek said his motivation stems from fear of becoming another down-on-his-luck farmer. The Sundial site previously produced up to 10,000 cucumbers a week. But Swiatek believes there's more money in marijuana and hopes criticism will subside in due time.

"I could say you took away a nice, healthy peach and you replaced it with booze? You're fuelling alcoholism," he said, later adding: "I'm simply trying to meet consumer demand ... I don't want to draw any attention to this place. I don't want to affect the neighbours and put up chain-link fences.

"On the other hand, though, if I put 165,000 square feet of cucumbers out there that's going to affect your peace and quiet, too."

Energy drink-alcohol cocktails may face ban on city property

Toxic mix. Studies show blending the two can have worrying effects

Should the sales of energy drink and alcohol be banned from events on city property? That's something city officials are looking to discuss.

According to Julie Stormer, with the city's civic events office, the issue needs to be discussed with Alberta Health Services, Alberta Gaming and Liquor Commission and other parties involved with liquor licences before they consider any action.

"Given that it is out there, maybe in the fall we'll have a conversation with those agencies to see what the direction should be and collectively come up with a process for moving forward," she Studies have shown that the mixing of both liquids can lead to worrying effects on those who consume mixed drinks such as Jagerbombs or vodka Red Bull.

"People think they're fine and they can drink more so they drink more and they become more impaired and they lose judgment," said Monica Campbell, Toronto Public Health director of healthy public policy, who recently updated a policy on the mixed drinks.

Stormer added that not many of the festivals held on city property sell both energy drinks and alcohol and that individual liquor licences are assessed based on liquor plans and security issues, not specifically mixing alcohol and energy drinks.

"But that said, we haven't actually said you can't do it.'

Community and creativity in costume department

Throughout its run in Edmonton, Metro has been introducing you to the performers of Odysseo through one of their own, Andrea Legg. The behindthe-scenes introductions continue this week.

Catherine Mireault is the head of the costume department for Odysseo. She began her work in the wardrobe department of the company's first show, Cavalia, in 2010. She then became the head of Odysseo's costume department when the show premiered in 2011.

As you can imagine, her job requires a very good sense of organization, an amazing team and nimble hands. There are 45 performers in the show, with an average of four costumes each. Odysseo has more than 350 costumes and 100 pairs of shoes — that's approximately 1,000 individual items to keep in perfect condition.

Catherine's professional background is in the fashion industry, which she found creatively fulfilling, but lacking in a certain sense of community. She discovered the close-knit feel she craved in the touring show environment.

Ex-Tory staffer Sona found guilty of fraud; judge feels he 'likely' had help in robocalls

Robocalls scandal.

Michael Sona's 'apparent arrogance and selfimportance' were his downfall, judge says

Michael Sona fell victim to his own "apparent arrogance and self-importance," a judge said Thursday as he convicted the former Conservative staffer of using automated phone calls to misdirect voters in the 2011 federal election.

But in passing judgment, Superior Court Justice Gary Hearn added his voice to a growing chorus of those who believe the so-called robocalls affair was not the work of a single rogue operator acting alone.

Sona, 25, the only one ever to be charged in the case, hung his head in the Guelph, Ont., courtroom.

Misleading voters

By now, the saga of the Guelph robocalls is well known. On the morning of May 2, 2011, automated phone calls were set up to target voters in Guelph most of them Liberal supporters — with misleading instructions on where to vote.

The company that made the calls, Edmontonbased tech firm RackNine, was hired by a customer who used fake names, including the infamous "Pierre Poutine," a disposable pay-as-you-go cellphone and prepaid credit cards.

"The balance of the evidence which I do accept is sufficient to establish beyond a reasonable doubt that Mr. Sona is guilty," Hearn said. Sona's "apparent arrogance and selfimportance" were his downfall, he added.

Sona, who faces a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $5,000 fine, returns to court for a sentencing hearing on Oct. 17, at which point "we'll be making very forceful submissions on sentencing," said Crown attorney Croft Michaelson — a warning, perhaps, to political operatives of all stripes watching in Ottawa.

Conservative party spokesman Cory Hann was quick to react to the verdict, issuing a statement within minutes of the decision. "As we've said all along, the Conservative party ran a clean and ethical cam-

Marijuana. B.C. appeals court rules medical pot can be used in oils, cookies and teas following constitution ruling

British Columbia's highest court is green-lighting medical marijuana in everything from oils and cookies to teas in a ruling that finds federal health laws limiting weed consumption to the dried variety is unconstitutional.

The B.C. Appeal Court released its 2-1 decision on Thursday stating that medical marijuana access regulations infringe on the charter rights of people requiring other forms of cannabis to treat illnesses.

The ruling upheld a decision by a lower court judge over the case of Owen Smith, a Victoria man who was charged in 2009 with possession for trafficking of THC — marijuana's active compound — while working as head baker for the Cannabis Buyers Club of Canada

His lawyer Kirk Tousaw, who also represents other medical marijuana-related litigants, said his client is pleased the court will allow patients to decide what mode of ingestion works best for their particular symptoms and conditions.

"How many people out there really think that a critically and chronically ill member of their family shouldn't be entitled to eat a medical marijuana cookie if that relieves their pain?" Tousaw said in an interview.

Amsterdam. Dutch Santa sidekick to have makeover

Amsterdam's mayor and the organizers of a large children's winter festival have unveiled plans to overhaul the image of "Black Pete" — the sidekick to the Dutch Santa Claus — after protests that the character exhibited racist elements.

Mayor Eberhard van der Laan said Thursday that Pete's appearance will be changed over several years from his current blackface to make him look like he has been merely covered with soot from going down chimneys to deliver presents.

Black Pete has become the subject of protests in the Netherlands. Opponents say he is a caricature of an African slave carried over from colonial times — he is usually portrayed by white people wearing blackface makeup, bold red lipstick and frizzy Afro wigs.

But a large majority of the Netherlands' mostly white population says that Pete is a positive figure and denies any racial insult.

Last month an Amsterdam court agreed with findings by a Dutch discrimination vetting board and a UN advisory panel that Black Pete's look is offensive.

Pam Evenhuis, spokesman for the Amsterdam committee that organizes the arrival of Santa Claus, or "Sinterklaas" in Dutch, says change is necessary to make sure the children's festival is fun and not controversial. Details were still being debated.

"The Pete photoshoot for 2014 isn't ready yet," he said.

In the Dutch tradition, Sinterklaas arrives on a steamboat laden with gifts, accompanied by numerous Black Petes. More than 250,000 people attend the celebration in Amsterdam alone.

Although Amsterdam is influential, other towns, businesses and individuals across the country may not want to change his look, the mayor added

India. Kids can partake in Krishna ceremony: Court

India's top court said Thursday that children as young as 12 can climb atop towering human pyramids in a popular Hindu celebration known for injuries and death in the past.

Devotees celebrate the birthday of the child-god Krishna each August by forming a 12-metre-high pyramid with the last climber, a child, clambering to the top to break the "dahi handi," a curd-filled earthen pot to honour Krishna.

Thousands partake annually; however, many die from falling from the top of the pyramid. The associated press ropes plunged into waters south of Myanmar's old capital, Yangon, as part of renewed efforts to retrieve a bronze bell that has been lying for centuries at the confluence of three rivers.

Myanmar salvage team dives for massive old bell

The 270-ton bell, believed one of the largest ever cast, was made on the order of King Dhammazedi in 1476 and donated to Shwedagon pagoda. In the early 1600s, it was stolen by Portuguese despot Philip de Brito, but his rickety vessel sank where the Yangon and Bago rivers meet Private and foreign groups have for years tried to retrieve the historic treasure, believed to be buried deep beneath heavy silt. They have been deterred in part by murky waters and torrential currents.

Subtle dissent in ravaged Gaza

Reaction. Suffering and loss from latest war breeds discontent with Hamas among group of Palestinians

The group of neighbours surveyed the destruction wreaked on their residential complex by Israeli bombardment, with building after building flattened or punctured by shells. The men then began to voice something almost never heard out loud in Gaza: Criticism of its Hamas rulers.

Exhausted by a month of pounding by Israel's military — on top of seven years of stifling closure of the tiny Mediterranean coastal strip — they questioned Hamas's handling of the crisis and the wisdom of repeatedly going to war with Israel.

"We do not want to be bombarded every two or three years. We want to lead a good life: Sleep well, drink well and eat well," said Ziad Rizk, a 37-year-old father of two.

It is impossible to say how widespread such discontent is among Gaza's 1.8 million residents. Under Hamas rule, it's dangerous to share even as much as a hint of criticism of the government with outsiders.

Still, the men's boldness in voicing their opinions could be a telling sign that some Gazans see Hamas as weakened.

The men who spoke with The Associated Press were all friends and neighbours who live in the Abraj al-Nada, or Al-Nada Towers, a collection of apartment buildings that was hit hard by Israeli airstrikes and tank shelling on July 17 in the Gaza district of Beit Lahiya.

Their grumbling is in part born from Gaza's increasing economic hardship. Unemployment runs at around 50 per cent. The Hamas government owes workers several months' back pay. The seven-year blockade by Israel and Egypt has choked businesses and jobs.

Police clash with protesters days after black teen killed

Ferguson, Mo. Residents complained of heavy-handed police presence Police used tear gas and smoke bombs to repel crowds who threw Molotov cocktails during another violent night on the streets of a St. Louis suburb in the wake of the fatal shooting Saturday of unarmed 18-yearold Michael Brown.

Hours earlier, the police chief had said race relations were the top priority in the town, where a white police officer fatally shot the black teen. Authorities have vowed to reach across the racial, economic and generational divide in a community in search of answers.

In the streets of Ferguson, though, the polite dialogue heard at community forums and news conferences is nowhere to be found.

Instead, officers from multiple departments in riot gear and in military equipment have clashed nightly with protesters, who chant, "Hands up, don't shoot." Wednesday saw more tense confrontations and further volleys of tear gas from police — this time paired with smoke bombs in response to flaming projectiles and other objects lobbed from the crowd. Protesters faced heavily armed police who at times trained weapons on them from armoured trucks.

Two reporters said they were detained by police for not clearing out quickly enough from a McDonald's where they were working, near the protests but away from the more volatile areas. The two, who work for The Washington Post and The Huffington Post, respectively, were released without any charges. Both say they were assaulted but not seriously hurt. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pentagon program

City streets not for 'tanks and M16s'

A Democratic congressman plans to introduce a bill to restrict a Defence Department program that provides machine-guns and other surplus military equipment for free to local law enforcement agencies across the U.S.

Rep. Hank Johnson said the legislation is in response to the death of an unarmed teenager who was shot by a police officer in a St. Louis suburb of Ferguson, Mo. The bill comes as members of Congress have called for the Justice Department to investigate the shooting.

Johnson said city streets should be a place for businesses and families, "not tanks and M16s." He said a Pentagon program that transfers surplus military equipment to state and local law enforcement has led to police agencies resembling paramilitary forces.

Brazil. Presidential race changes after plane crash kills top contender

Brazil's political landscape was being redrawn Thursday, a day after a small plane crash killed a top presidential candidate less than two months before the election.

The death of politician Eduardo Campos in a plane that smashed into a white-collar neighbourhood in the port city of Santos is reshuffling the candidates and voter preferences, and could further complicate president Dilma Rousseff's reelection, analysts say.

Political observers say Cam-pos' socialist party is expected to declare his running mate Marina Silva, one of the country's most popular politicians, as its presidential candidate in the coming days.

"If she runs, it becomes a more competitive race. It increases the likelihood of a runoff happening," said Joao Augusto de Castro Neves, Latin America director for the Eurasia Group consulting firm. "It would be a pretty close race to see who is going to be the runner up." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Sexual assault in the military

StatsCan survey. Study reveals 1 in 13 women in the Canadian Forces has experienced some sort of sexual assault

One in 13 female full-time members of the Canadian Forces has been sexually assaulted during military service, Statistics Canada has found.

The statistics agency surveyed 6,700 full-time regular members of the Forces, with a proportional percentage of women and men to the military enrolment figures, from April to August 2013.

Of the women surveyed, 7.6 per cent said they had been sexually assaulted while either deployed on Canadian Forces operation, at a Canadian Forces Workplace or by a Canadian Forces member or civilian Department of National Defence employee."

The figure jumped to 15.6 per cent when including women who reported they'd been touched sexually against their will — also in the course of their service in the military.

Respondents were instructed that "sexual assault" was defined for the survey as "someone forcing you or attempting to force you into any unwanted sexual activity, by threatening you, holding you down or hurting you in some way."

The other category, "unwanted sexual touching," was defined as "unwanted touching or grabbing, kissing or fondling."

Of the men surveyed, about 0.2 per cent said they'd been sexually assaulted in connection with their work in the military. However, Statistics Canada cautions that that number is low enough to be at risk of sampling error.

When including the number of men who said they'd experienced unwanted sexual touching, the number rises to 0.8 per cent — which would translate to about 500 of the forces' 55,500 male soldiers. That number is statistically valid, according to the statistics agency.

The Canadian Forces Mental Health Survey 2013 was conducted by Statistics Canada in conjunction with the Department of National Defence. It surveyed currently serving members only, and would not have included anyone who was sexually assaulted and left the military before the survey was conducted.

The survey covered many aspects of mental health and trauma. Some results concerning mental health and alcohol use were publicly released this week. A section on military sexual trauma was also included in the questionnaire.

Metro requested and received a breakdown of the sexual trauma results.

The average annual number of sexual assault complaints since 2000, from full-time and reserve members, to the military police, according to a Maclean's/L'actualité investigation

University of Ottawa PhD candidate Ashley Bickerton is studying military sexual assaults. Bickerton said the sexual trauma data was welcome, but criticized the definition of sexual assault used in the survey because most people — and the law — consider "unwanted touching or grabbing, kissing or fondling" to be sexual assault.

According to Statistics Canada, that definition was used because it was consistent with surveys done in the past and would produce comparable results.

Retired justice Marie Deschamps is conducting an external review into sexual assault policy and procedures, training and culture in the Canadian Forces. The results of that review are expected next spring. It was launched after a Maclean's/L'actualité investigation that included multiple interviews

Civilian courts

Sexual assault was investigated and tried by civilian police and courts until 1998, and some would like to see it back in the civilian system.

- "Civilian police are able to investigate regardless of the rank that applies," said Michel Drapeau, a former Canadian Forces member who is now a lawyer who represents soldiers who've been sexually assaulted. Drapeau is critical of the ongoing external review, because it excludes any review of the military police and justice system.
- "With somebody like Russell Williams on the base, military police may be very intimidated to knock on the door of a colonel. And a victim may be very intimated to report to the police or the prosecutor an action by a senior officer."

with military women who spoke about being sexually assaulted by other soldiers or commanding officers and then mistreated by the command when they reported it.

Response

DND: 'It's disturbing'

The Department of National Defence made psychiatrist and mental health adviser to the Canadian Forces command Col. Rakesh Jetly available for an interview with Metro.

Rakesh said statistics were gathered as part of a large survey on mental health meant to help the military better understand the "burden and the impact of mental illness" and trauma for its members. DND has not yet analyzed the sexual trauma data and had not yet seen it until asked about it by Metro.

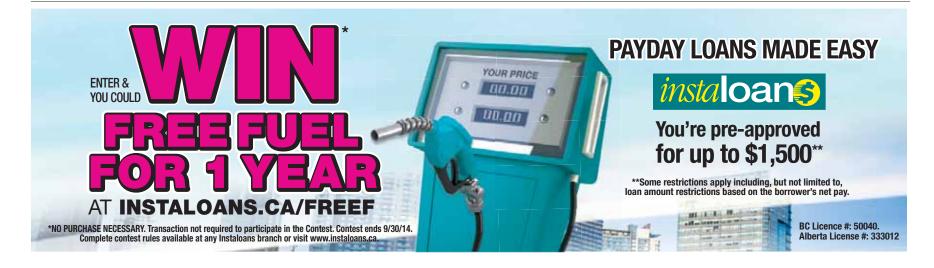

Some analysis of the data will be presented in November, he said.

"We've asked about different kinds of trauma, sexual trauma is one type of trauma — because we want to see, first of all, how often does it occur and we want to see its relationship to the illnesses," he said.

"As a senior officer in the Canadian Forces, it's concerning to see numbers — it almost doesn't matter what the numbers are — it's disturbing ... that sexual trauma within our workplace does occur."

Rakesh couldn't speculate on why the numbers are as high as they are, what they say about the military's culture, the use of military over civilian police to investigate, or whether new female recruits would be informed of the new statistics.

Raw-milk crusader vows to keep fighting

The Supreme Court of Canada will not hear an appeal from an Ontario farmer who has long championed the right to sell and drink unpasteurized milk, but he says "it's not the end of the road."

The top court's refusal to hear Michael Schmidt's case means his 2011 convictions and $9,150 in fines, on 13 charges under the Health Protection and Promotion Act and the Milk Act, will stand. As is usual the court did not provide reasons.

Schmidt will, however, continue his crusade to provide people who wish to buy raw milk with the unpasteurized product.

The Ontario government maintains the unprocessed milk poses a significant risk to public health, but Schmidt insists there's no evidence anyone has ever fallen ill from his milk, and he and his supporters argue raw milk offers health benefits.

"I don't think it's the end of the road at all," he said from his farm in Durham, Ont., south of Owen Sound. "I think it was a ruling on a very specific case, a very specific situation. I think it will become much more a political issue now than a legal issue."

Ontario does not ban the consumption of raw milk and farmers are allowed to drink the milk produced by their own cows. Earlier court decisions have found that Schmidt's method of allowing consumers to buy an ownership interest in a dairy cow was little more than a way to circumvent the rules.

DRAKE, UPTOWN GIRL & #SHARKWEEK

1 Nice one, Drake. The Toronto Raptors were fined $25,000 by the NBA for comments their team ambassador Ďrake made to Kevin Durant at a recent concert in Toronto where Drake basically said "Come to T.O.!" when you're a free agent. Now the NBA has deemed that a violation of its anti-tampering rules. Methinks the ROI was worth it here after the attention this is getting.

2 YouTube killed the video star ... A fascinating new survey by Variety—and this is backed up the sheer number of Internet personalities at Fox's Teen Choice Awards Sunday — found that the five most influential figures among teens 13 to 18 are all YouTube faves, beating out Hollywood A-listers such as JLaw and Seth Rogen. Hollywood, watch out: The future really is online.

4 Asharktastic week indeed. Who said TV is dead? The Discovery Channel's "Shark Week" proves some stuff on the boob tube has staying power. Shark Week is celebrating its 27th anniversary this week, with seven days of sharktastic TV. Heck, even Rob Lowe got in the action, riding two sharks in a trippy "So sharky" promo video. Naturally, the #SharkWeek hashtag was also getting thousands of bites online.

5 ... And the video star that killed the medium be-fore it celebrates 30 years. It was once a pop culture phenom across Canada, but a lot changes in three decades like hairstyles, children's names and a world going digital. Still, nostalgia is always en vogue so Much's 30th anniversary special Aug. 30 will be a must-watch for the groundbreaking interviews they did, and videos they showed. Before digital killed the TV

Oh snap! Snapchat is a growing thing. Many dismiss Snapchat as 6 a frivolous social media tool for tweens. But it's growing up. A new study says 70 per cent of college students in the U.S. report posting on it at least once a day, compared to 46 per cent on Twitter and only 11 per cent on Facebook with the same frequency. Point is, all social media matures. So adults and brands, time to start paying attention!

And the live-tweet is officially a thing. Among the words Britain's Oxford University Press has added to its online Oxford Dictionaries is "live-tweet" — the act of posting comments about an event on Twitter as it is taking place. So you can live-tweet this tidbit while reading my column.

Goodbye Robin Williams. R.I.P. The impact you had will never be forgotten. You gave us tears of laughter. This week, you gave us tears of pain. But you also opened the conversation in a huge way about mental health, addiction and depression.

WWII vet re-enacts famous Times Square kiss to commemorate end of fighting

The Spirit of '45 was well alive on Thursday as veterans gathered at Times Square in New York City to mark the 69th anniversary of the end of the Second World War and America's victory over

A 26-foot statue by Seward Johnson depicting the iconic Times Square Kiss photo taken by Alfred Eisenstaedt was unveiled at the event, and war veteran Sydnor Thompson and his wife, Harriette, re-enacted one of the most famous kisses of all time. METRO

tory behind the image

The original photo was made famous after it was featured in Life magazine.

- The woman in the shot, Greta Zimmer, did not know the sailor who kissed her and has said of the moment: "That man was very strong. I wasn't kissing him. He was kissing me."
- Some people view the photo as a very public documentation of a sexual assault, and not something to be celebrated.

RICHARD CROUSE AND MARK BRESLIN

The Expendables 3.

Sly rounds up his old-time action heroes for another romp, but in all the bombs, bullets and bazookas, something is missing — a plot

Richard: Mark, more people die in the first five minutes of this movie than in any other two war movies combined. There is death by bullet, bazooka and bomb. It's a wild but oddly bloodless beginning to the movie. Perhaps it's because they have scaled back the rating to PG13 from the hard Rs the last two Expendables enjoyed, but removing most of the over-the-top violence leaves an absence of the over-the-top fun of the oriand Company up the wazoo and then skimp on the fake

Mark: I kind of liked the lionaire bad guy, a role he's been rehearsing for vears.

RC: How could you not love Wesley Snipes saying that his character was put in jail for tax evasion? It's art imitating life! Or something. I thought that most of the performances weren't so much performances as they were action-star posturing. Kelsey Grammer, as a recruiter for the new batch of Expendables, stands out because he does some actual acting. So do many of the obvious stunt doubles. The rest are bulked-up machismo floating in a sea of testos-

MB: Wesley Snipes and his tax joke did make me smile but then he disappears from the story until the end. There are just too many characters to follow: Even the poster is in widescreen. The movie felt like an abattoir populated by frisky sides of beef.

RC: Still, as an old-school action movie, it works well enough, despite the lack of gallons of fake plasma. I liked the attempts of creating new catchphrases which are a must in these kinds of films — like Crews yelling, "It's time to mow the lawn," before spraying thousands of bullets into a dock packed with baddies. Also, the action scenes are shot clearly and effectively,

The tough-as-nails Expendables are back. A mission to stop a shipment of bombs brings grizzled mercenaries Barney Ross (Sylvester Stallone). Lee Christmas (Jason Statham), Gunner (Dolph Lundgren), Toll Road (Randy Couture) and Caesar (Terry Crews) face to face with their toughest adversary yet, arms dealer Conrad Stonebanks (Mel Gibson). Determined to bring down Stonebanks, Ross retires the old-timers and recruits a fresh group of soldiers, but he may find his old dogs have some new tricks.

Moretz seeks strength in her all her characters

If I Stay. Star of Carrie and Kick Ass tackles a role that prompts big questions about life. death and happiness

RICHARD CROUSE

Seventeen-year-old Chloë Grace Moretz has played a young vampire in Let Me In, a wouldbe superhero in Kick Ass and cinema's most famous telekinetic, Carrie. It's a diverse group of roles, but Moretz says she can draw a straight line from character to character.

"They're linear," she says, "in the sense that they're all strong characters. A lot of them are like me, the basis of them. They all have a big mountain in front of them but they are going to climb it and fight as hard as they can. The weakest character, but also the strongest character, I've played is Carrie. She is two different characters in one, so diverse and so dark. There is so much to learn from

In her new film If I Stay, she plays Mia, a gifted teenage cellist from a family of musicians. When a catastrophic accident throws her into a coma, she has an out-of-body experience.

The rest of the story is told from the perspective of her memories before the accident and in the present, as she observes, ghostlike, the aftermath of the car crash.

The character appealed to her because she saw some of herself in Mia.

'She's an introvert until she plays the cello and the cello brings her alive. It's how I am. I'm pretty shy, unless I'm speaking about my job. I'm really shy around teenagers my age. Sometimes it's because they judge me and it kind of scares me. Crowds scare me, teenagers scare me, new people. I get really quiet and awkward."

With that insight, she hoped to make Mia true to the character created by author Gayle Forman in the bestselling book that inspired the movie.

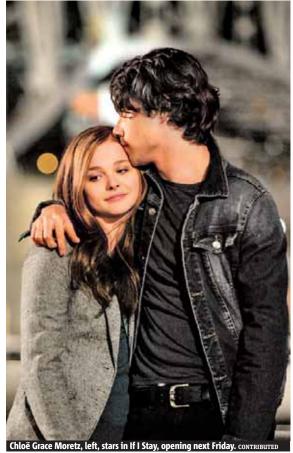

"My biggest thing was making her honest to the book," she

"I have been a fan of book series, and then I'll see the movie and think, 'That was such a let-down.' I hate that feeling because for me, I want to be able to be a fan of my own

The movie is a tear jerker, but Moretz says she doesn't like it "when people chalk up a movie to being all about crying. I like to walk out of a movie feeling like I have learned something, that something's changed.'

After seeing If I Stay, she hopes audiences "leave feeling they felt something. It is a really beautiful movie about life and death and happiness and sadness and music

Radcliffe's reboot is working out well

The F Word. When you've grown up as Harry Potter, you're bound to be itching to stretch your acting chops in other roles

scene@metronews.c

There are things about Daniel Radcliffe that you probably already know.

Thanks to the Harry Potter series he's one of the most recognizable actors on earth. He is 5'5" tall, a published poet and is the youngest person, other than royalty, to be honoured with a portrait in the National Portrait Gallery.

Here's what you don't know. He's also remarkably reliable. In 10 years of shooting the Potter pictures, he only missed two days — and he's polite.

For this interview he turned up early (when was the last time an international superstar was on time?) and greets your reporter with a hearty, "What a lovely surprise."

He offers to help with my crossword — "I'm one of those people in life who probably really annoys serious crossword doers. I'm one of those people who comes up behind and goes, 'That one you're about to get? I've got it'" — and apologizes when he almost lets a curse slip.

He is not your typical superstar and his new romance, The F Word, is not a typical romcom.

The 25-year-old actor says the story of a young man hopelessly in love with his best friend (Zoe Kazan) "has things a lot of films want, that combination of being sarcastic and quick and funny without being negative or cynical."

"Zoe says a great thing," he says of co-star Kazan.

"She talks about how in most romantic comedies the people meet and then there's a getting-to-know-you montage, then they do whatever they're going to do for the rest of the film. Our movie is basically that montage expanded to feature length, and that is what is so joyous about it. Those moments when you are getting to know someone and flirting with them, making them laugh, are so intimate and so exciting and so charged that as an audience it is wonderful to be allowed in to watch that and live through it again."

Playing the lovesick romantic lead is something different for Radcliffe, who says he wants "to try my hand at as many things as possible."

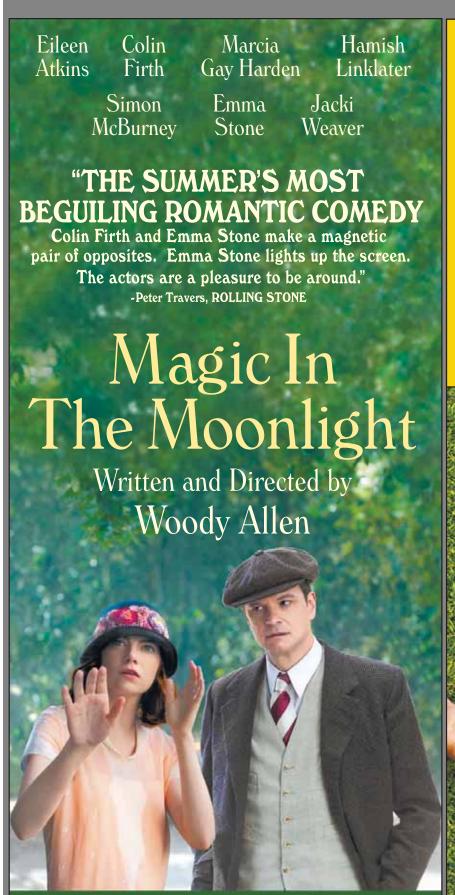

Since the final Potter film in 2011, he has appeared in everything from the beatnik drama Kill Your Darlings to the fantasy film Horns and will soon be seen as Igor in a new version of Frankenstein.

"Having played one character for a very long time," he says, "that builds up in you a desire to play a number of different characters and do as much different work as you can. I want to show as many different sides of my ability as I can. Also I like that you can't predict what my next thing is going to be."

Unpredictable, yes, but still polite.

Play it Again, Dick. Bell back on Mars

Kristen Bell, the star of the original Veronica Mars series, will be joined by all of the other primary cast members on Play It Again, Dick, the new online series coming to The CW's website.

This is shaping up to be a big year for Veronica Mars, which was cancelled in 2007 after three seasons.

After making a momentous comeback via the silver screen in March, the series is now being resurrected by creator Rob Thomas through a new online spinoff.

Titled Play It Again, Dick, the series involves a self-referential premise in which Ryan Hansen, the actor who played Dick Casablancas on the original show, attempts to ride the wave of Veronica Mars' success by starring in his own spinoff.

In keeping with this logic, Kristen Bell will appear as both Veronica Mars and as herself. Also playing themselves and their respective characters are Jason Dohring (Logan Echolls), Enrico Colantoni (Keith Mars), Percy Daggs III (Wallace), Francis Capra (Weevil), Daran Norris (Cliff McCormack), Chris Lowell (Piz) and Ken Marino (Vinnie Van Lowe).

The eight episodes of Play It Again, Dick will be released through The CW's website from Sept. 15.

Michael C. Hall

From serial killer to famed Canuck bank robber

One year after the end of Dexter, actor Michael C. Hall is preparing his return to TV on the miniseries God Fearing Man. The actor will executive produce the production and play the lead role, the Hollywood Reporter reveals. Based on a screenplay written by Stanley Kubrick and inspired by a true story, the miniseries will feature Hall as the Canadian minister Herbert Emerson Wilson, who became one of the most notable bank robbers of the 20th century. The drama hails from production company Entertainment One. AFP

Thurber Prize

David Letterman book a finalist for humour award

David Letterman, maybe your next career should be as an author. The CBS Late Show host, scheduled to step down in 2015, is a finalist for this year's Thurber Prize for American Humor. Letterman and illustrator Bruce McCall have been nominated for the satirical picture book This Land Was Made for You and Me (But Mostly Me).

Letterman's fame sets him apart from the other nominees, and so does his employment. He is the only finalist not affiliated with The New Yorker. The other nominees for the $5,000 prize are magazine contributors Liza Donnelly and John Kenney.

Michael Jackson. No Name video is a first for Twitter

Five years after his death, Michael Jackson is back with a new video that breaks new ground by premiering on Twitter.

The late King of Pop — who pioneered music videos in the 1980s with the advent of MTV — had written the song A Place With No Name, with loose inspiration from the 1972 folk-rock classic A Horse With No Name by the band America.

Released in May on his posthumous album XSCAPE,

Michael Jackson's estate and Epic Records decided to premiere an accompanying video on Twitter late Wednesday in what they said was a first for the social media site.

The video was also broadcast on an overhead screen in New York's Times Square in co-ordination with the Twitter debut.

The video features archival footage of a mid-career Jackson, dancing in a tight tank top against a black-andwhite backdrop, along with a couple sensuously intertwining in the desert heat.

The song tells the story of a motorist whose Jeep suffers a flat tire on the highway and meets a woman who, in Jackson's words, explains, "Don't you worry, my friend, I'll take care."

"Take me to a place without no name," Jackson sings, rhythmically if ungrammatically, to a heavy bass line.

Jackson explains the couple's onward journey and discovery of a "beautiful city" where "kids are playing and people are laughing and smiling, and no one's in fear."

A Place With No Name was directed by Samuel Bayer, whose previous work includes Nirvana's Smells Like Teen Spirit, featuring video of a raucous school concert.

Jackson was an early enthusiast of matching videos to his songs. His 1983 video Thriller was a landmark as it was virtually a miniature horror movie that ran nearly 14 minutes long. AFP

Paltrow 'totally at ease' during Utah escape with Glee co-creator

So Gwyneth Paltrow was serious about all that conscious uncoupling stuff after all. She's reportedly dating Glee co-creator Brad Falchuk, according to Star magazine. The two spent some quality time together at a resort in Utah in late July. Because nothing says romance like Utah. In late July. "I saw Gwyneth and Brad one afternoon sitting in the dining room," a fellow vacationer tells the tabloid. "She had her hair down and wasn't wearing any makeup. They were chatting and smiling and looked totally at ease. I'm sure there's a new Goop post coming about how an $8,000-a-night private villa at a resort in Utah is a great place for a little "me time."

Birthday, books, bathing at a Bora Bora bungalow: Dr. Seuss would be proud

When Jennifer Aniston and Justin Theroux want to just get away for a bit, they apparently get very far away. The couple reportedly spent last week taking a quick jaunt to Bora Bora in honour of Theroux's 43rd birthday, according to E! News. Not too shabby. Aniston and Theroux stayed in a private swimup bungalow at the Four Seasons, where they pretty much just sunbathed and caught up on reading. As you do. În Bora Bora.

company are the last thing you want staying at your hotel, the folks at NYC's fancy-schmancy Greenwich Hotel learned recently when her entourage checked in.

"It was like a tornado hit the lobby. Miley and her posse took over, screaming and carrying on so much that management received a number of complaints,' a source tells Life & Style. "Someone in the group was smoking pot, and they were swearing loudly and throwing themselves all over the expensive furniture."

I hear another guest, possibly a Vanderbilt, was treated for a sprained wrist after too much pearlclutching.

Hotel management tried to give Miley a talking to, but she was having none of it, responding that "she's spent so much money there that they should be glad to have her," the source says.

Well, she just sounds like a peach.

Author appeals lawsuit over Jolie's Blood and Honey

The Croatian author who claims Angelina Jolie ripped him off for her film In the Land of Blood and Honey may have lost his last court battle against her, but he isn't giving up that easily. James Braddock sued Jolie in 2011, accusing her of using his book, The Soul Shattering, as the basis for her film, but a judge ruled in her favour. Now Braddock is filing an appeal in federal court, according to Radar Online. "The court's decision noted a number of material errors, starting with clear descriptions that are interpreted or translated incorrectly," his appeal reads. "The tests that were performed were not executed in the right way.

Usher's not quite as smart as he thought he was at 28

For Usher, the biggest mistake of his life was "getting married at 28." That may sound severe, but he still insists he has no regrets. 'Most people probably think I regret it because I ended up getting divorced," Usher, who went through a lengthy legal battle with ex-wife Tameka Foster, tells Oprah Winfrey's O magazine. "But it helped me learn that, sometimes, I think I know more than I actually do."

Dining outdoors is hands down one of the best things about summer.

Few things are more enjoyable than lazily lingering in the shade of a tree with great food and even better company.

The cherry on top? A decadent dessert, of course. These Pecan Pie Squares are sure to satisfy a sweet tooth — including mine!

1. With the rack in the middle position, preheat the oven to 350 F (180 C). Line an 8-inch (20 cm) square pan with parchment paper, letting it hang over two sides. Butter the other two sides. Set aside.

- 2. In a bowl, combine the flour and 60 ml (1/4 cup) of the sugar. Add 6 tbsp (90 ml) of the butter and combine with an electric mixer until the texture is grainy. Press onto the bottom of the prepared pan. Bake for about 20 minutes or until the edges are lightly browned.
- 3. Meanwhile, in a saucepan, bring the syrup, cream and pecans to a boil with the remaining butter and sugar and stir. Simmer for 2 minutes. Pour over the warm crust in the pan and bake for 20 minutes. Let cool.
- 4. Run a thin blade around the edge of the pie and let cool completely. Remove from the pan and cut into 36 squares. Store in an airtight container at room temperature for up to 2 weeks or freeze.

Match made in Chianti

LIQUID ASSETS
Peter Rockwell

My brief mention of Chianti last week inspired a flood of questions asking for more details.

Chianti is an area in Tuscany between the cities of Sienna and Florence. Famous for rolling hills and statuesque cypress trees, it was one of the first Italian regions to export to Canada. That made its juice a household name.

The fact its original bottles (called a fiasco) came wrapped in a straw basket made them the toast of the 1970s when all the groovy people, and their grandmothers, started drinking the stuff.

It pumps out more red than white, and is home to the sangiovese grape. While the Classico sub-zone is where the oldest (and arguably best) vines grow, it's one of eight areas that can slap Chianti on its labels.

The Rúfina sub-zone is an undiscovered gem and Frescobaldi's 2009 Nipozzano Chianti Riserva ($19.99 - $26.98) serves up the savoury finesse and lingering layers of cherry fruit that typify Rúfina

Cellar-worthy, it hits a home run with lasagna and pizza.

The Tao of swimming

Rebecca Adlington. In 2008, at 18, the English swimmer won two gold medals, then retired at 25. Today, she advocates for the overall benefits of being in the pool

A new study claims that swimming just a few laps a week can decrease negative emotions by a third. Having been the victim of Twitter trolls, would you say that swimming is what helped you deal with that?

It definitely gave me my confidence and my escapism. It's a huge part and love of my life. It's nice to be in a pool with your thoughts and be able to process things, and understand what's going on. It can give you peace.

How would you describe swimming?

Freedom. The feeling of being in water is unlike anything else; you can't replicate it. I go into my own world. And it's just kind of the weightlessness, which is kind of how I imagine space would feel.

A lot of people would rather go jogging or ride a bicycle — and wear leggings and baggy workout clothes — because they're insecure about the way they look in a swimsuit.

You go to the pool to escape, not to look or stare at other people. As soon as you hop in, no one's going to see you anyway.

It's also about getting the right swimming gear. A lot of swimsuits now have a lot of support; Speedo has a range that does this tummy tuck sort of thing. Like Spanx, but not as tight.

Would you say swimming is more of a sport or a therapy for you?

When I competed, it was definitely a sport. But it's now more about leisure. I don't even try to swim fast anymore. I struggled with motivation right after the Olympic Games because my body was sick of exercising. So I gave it a good six months of not being in a pool. I took that time out to mentally and physically debrief; I had to learn it wasn't a race.

Red carpet to retail. Maleficent Louboutin shoes to arrive in October

The shoes that caught fashionistas' attention on the red carpet of the Maleficent premieres are about to hit the streets.

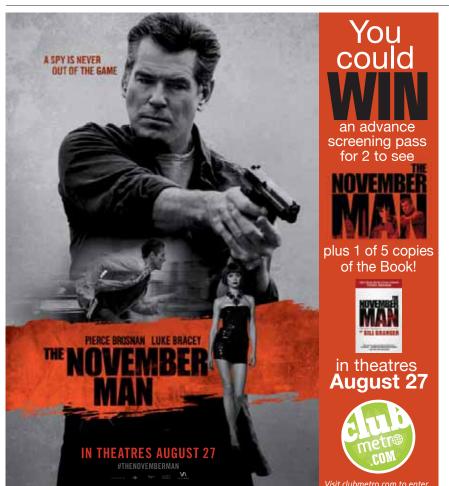

Created by Christian Louboutin in collaboration with Angelina Jolie for her recent press tour, the limited edition Malangeli shoes are now available for pre-order at the brand's five flagship stores in Paris, Hong Kong, London, New York and West Hollywood.

Available in black and red, the shoes have a twisted heel that calls to mind a curl of smoke for an evil touch.

Shoe addicts will have to shell out €1,045 (around $1,400) to pre-order a pair, with delivery starting Oct. 20.

But since Angelina Jolie is involved, the initiative will also benefit a good cause: All proceeds will go to SOS Children's Villages, which works to improve the lives of orphaned and abandoned children. AFP

Esks face off with Redblacks

Another win?

Edmonton expected to dominate as they play against Ottawa

Life is not about to get any easier for the Ottawa Red-

Losers of three straight, the Redblacks (1-5) host the powerful Edmonton Eskimos (5-1) on Friday.

In what seems like a case of piling on, another West Division power, the Calgary Stampeders, comes to the nation's capital next week.

It's a pretty bleak picture for the expansion Redblacks, who like other teams in the inferior East have trouble when pitted against their West Division counterparts. Still, coach Rick Campbell said his team can get that elusive second win if it can limit its mis-

"Any time you face a good team — like the last three weeks of Saskatchewan, Calgary and Edmonton — they're not going to beat themselves, so we need to make sure we keep things positive," Campbell said. "We can't afford negative plays, which would include penalties, and we've got to limit the turnovers and when we've played that way, which we did several games early in the season, then we gave ourselves a chance to win the game."

Statistically, things don't look great for the Redblacks.

The team ranks ninth and dead last in the CFL in yards allowed per game (415.8), is seventh in offence (332.7) and eighth in rushing yards per game (79.2).

Despite the numbers, players believe they are coming together as a team.

"Everybody just has to focus on themselves and do their own job and keep their integrity," said linebacker

Jasper Simmons, who had nine tackles and an interception last week. "Keeping your integrity means you can rely on me, rely on me to be where I need to be and if that happens good things will happen. We have great effort, great will and great power to do what we have points per game), which is certainly bad news for Ottawa (1-5), whose defence is giving up a league-high 31.5 points per game. Edmonton's defence is allowing just 17.8 points per game while the expansion Redblacks counter with an offence averaging just 18.5 points per contest. It all doesn't bode well for the home team.

Pick: Edmonton

to do, but we have to be smart.'

The Redblacks don't want to use their tough schedule as an excuse, but a stretch of games against Saskatchewan, Calgary, Edmonton and Calgary again would be tough for any team, let alone an expansion team.

The Western teams have proven to be a challenge for everyone in the East, but the tough stretch has also allowed the Redblacks to see how they measure up against the best and determine what improvements need to be made.

The Redblacks face Edmonton for the second time this season.

Eskimos at Redblacks, Friday, 7:30 p.m. (TSN) The Eskimos (5-1) come off a 33-23 win in Montreal on Friday night. Instead of riding the strong arm of quarterback Mike Reilly, Édmonton relied on a strong ground attack as John White ran for 102 yards and a TD on just seven carries to anchor a 191-yard rushing attack. Reilly finished 15-of-21 passing for 206 yards with two TDs and a pick, while adding 21 yards rushing on four carries. The Eskimos boast the CFL's highestscoring offence (27.2

Curling. 12 rinks qualify for CCA's National Team Program, which comes with funding for competitions, training

The Canadian Curling Association has unveiled the 12 rinks that will be part of the organization's National Team Program for the 2014-15 season.

The six men's teams are skipped by Olympic champion Brad Jacobs of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Mike McEwen of Winnipeg, John Morris of Calgary, Brad Gushue of St. John's, N.L., Kevin Koe of Calgary and Glenn Howard of Penetanguishene, Ont.

The six women's teams are skipped by Olympic champion Jennifer Jones of Winnipeg, Rachel Homan of Ottawa, Stefanie Lawton of Saskatoon, Val Sweeting of Edmonton, Sherry Middaugh of Coldwater, Ont., and Heather Nedohin of Sherwood Park, Alta.

The teams qualified for the National Team Program (NTP) based on their standings on the Order of Merit following last season.

"The depth of curling talent in our country is amazing, and the international results continue to prove that," CCA chief executive officer Greg Stremlaw said Thursday in a release. "We were the only country in the world to have no team finish outside of the top six in traditional four-player world and Olympic championship events last season, and the National Team Program has played a significant role in those ongoing successes.

As part of the NTP, the teams will have funding to cover some competition and training costs. They will also be able to access high-performance resources in the areas of sports science, sports medicine and coaching from either inside or outside of the CCA.

All 12 teams will be participating in the Dec. 3-to-7 Canada Cup of Curling at Encana Arena in Camrose, Alta. It's the opening event of the CCA's Season of Champions.

Tennis. Raonic's heavy serve narrowly carries him past qualifier

Milos Raonic says he came to the court with a poor attitude, and it almost cost him. Fortunately for the fifth-seeded Canadian, his booming serve rescued him from a big upset.

Raonic saved a win with his 30th ace in a tense 6-7 (7), 6-3, 7-6 (4) victory over American qualifier Steve Johnson on Thursday to advance to the quarter-finals of the Western & Southern Open tennis tour-

While his serve was potent, Raonic said his poor play made the contest "complicated."

Raonic had to win it all in a tiebreaker after striking three double-faults as he served for victory leading 5-4 in the final set. In the end, the 23-year-old won the last four points of the

"My attitude was not great when I was first serving for the match," said Raonic.

"I just complicated things in a lot of moments. I certainly would have rather had that final ace at 5-4 in the third."

Raonic plays on Friday against Fabio Fognini, who beat Lu Yen-Hsun 3-6, 6-3, 6-3. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Race car death fallout.

Tony Stewart to sit out next Sprint Cup race

Tony Stewart says he will not race Sunday at Michigan International Speedway, skipping a second straight NASCAR Sprint Cup race since striking and killing a driver in a dirttrack race at a small New York

Stewart announced the decision Thursday. His plans for the rest of the season have not been determined.

Jeff Burton will drive Stewart's No. 14 Chevrolet in Michigan.

Stewart also sat out Sunday at Watkins Glen, a day after he struck and killed Kevin Ward Jr. during a sprint car event in Canandaigua, N.Y. After Stewart clipped Ward's car, sending it spinning, Ward got out of the car during the caution period, walked down the track and was hit by Stewart.

Ward's funeral was Thursday in Boonville, N.Y.

Stewart's dirt-racing career is on hold, and he could face criminal charges.

MLB's future commish

Manfred to succeed Selia

Rob Manfred was elected baseball's 10th commissioner Thursday and will succeed Bud Selig in January. A labour lawyer who has worked for Major League Baseball since 1998, Manfred beat out Boston Red Sox chairman Tom Werner in the first contested vote for a new commissioner in 46 years. The third candidate, MLB executive vicepresident of business Tim Brosnan, dropped out just before the start of voting.

The 55-year-old Manfred, who grew up in Rome, N.Y., must address issues that include decreased interest in baseball among younger people and longer games. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

T Aries

March 21 - April 20

It will pay you to take a closer look at how you organize your everyday affairs. You may not be able to escape responsibilities but there are ways you can make them easier to handle.

Taurus April 21 - May 21

The pace of life will pick up today and over the weekend and if you are involved in anything of a creative nature it will go extremely well for you.

∐ Gemini May 22 - June 21

You may not agree with what a loved one tells you about they've been up to but resist the urge to say that it's wrong.

9 Cancer

June 22 - July 23 You can't seem to make up your mind which direction you should be moving, which is of course frustrating, but who says you have to make a decision? Sit tight and wait for a sign.

Ω Leo

July 24 - Aug. 23

As mind planet Mercury moves into the money area of your chart today, you will come up with some ideas as to how to boost your spending power.

M Virgo Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
